CUSD would like to invite you to our upcoming Parent Academy Module: Do you feel like your child doesn't listen to you? on Tuesday, January 15, 2019. The CUSD Parent Academy is pleased to offer an evening dedicated to providing parents and family members with valuable information on keeping communication open and ongoing.

Talking with your child is a daily event. But, let's face it, as parents; we are busy, and it is easier to keep the conversation with our children light, so we can move on to the next thing on our "to-do" list. Do you ever feel like; they just don't listen? Do they just go their room? There's a place for light conversation in daily life but there are also those times when your child needs for you to tune in and listen more deeply. Your child may not always tell you this but he or she needs for you to probe into their inner life on occasion to find out what they are thinking and feeling. Not only will this help them, and you make more sense of their emotions, but it will also strengthen your relationship with them. They will intuitively sense that you understand them better because you took the time and energy to really care. Keeping in Touch with Your Child's Social Emotional Well-Being. This module will share ways to keep communication within your family. You will leave with "Tune In" strategies to help with communicating with your children.

In order to assure your attendance for the evening as well as to assist the Department of Supplemental Services in planning and materials preparation, please complete the RSVP form below and return to Krista Cortez in Supplemental Services by Thursday, January 10, 2019. You will receive an email and call for reminder and confirmation prior to the event.
